With a view to interest our readers and gratify their curiosity, we beg leave to spread afore them a few extracts from some of their tesding organs and correspondence:

per and legitimate position.

"One short blustering month of a shilly shally admistration of our affairs only remains when there will be an end probably a rope's end, put to treason and traitors. The forbear-tunes of the North and the waiting cry of conpromise may encourage the secessionists to commit the overt act, and inaugurate civil war. Our danger is imminent, and no one can tell where the first bload may fall that shall arouse the North, but when that times comes, look out for war. It will be no child's play strong-minded women's convention, but a slaughter, to sanguine and immense that our rivers will tun blood, and a nation will be baptized therein without remission of sins, so flagrant and enormous that all the rivers of Demascus and the would could not wash them out of Gods remembrance. Treason has been so long tolerated among us that it has become bold, arrogant and overbearing, and our chief magistrate and the great shepherd of Texas, received commissioners of treason with cordial assurances of kindness and hospitality, instead of handing them over to the U.S. Marshal for arrest, and hanging them afterwards as criminals of the highest magnitude. We rejoice to hear our Northern members speak boldly for the time has come to speak out. The times past may suffice for compromises, concessions, and surrenders. We have faith in Abraham that he will allay all this excitement by enforcing the laws. He may not exactly swear by the eternal but we think he will manifest old Hickory's spirit in the dis-charge of the executive duties. We regard him as a sort of Hickory Quaker grit, opposed to war, except in self defence, and to fighting. unless necessary, in fact just such a man as is wanted in these blustering times. He may not swear but solemnly affirm that the Union must be preserved and the faithfully executed even if it should be necessary to execute traitors and outlaws."

The General Convention of the Seceling States is in sesison at Montgomery, Alabama. The object is to form a Provisional General Government. Howel Cobb, the late decamping Secretary of the Treasury, who run off with some millions of the public money has been elected permanent secretary. We have no further proceedings, as yet of this Conclave of "The actual condition of the country may as well be looked in the face first as last. The slave power has declared war upon the American republic. That power asks for no compromise, and will be satisfied with none And this, such men as Mr. Seward and Mr. Adams ought to have seen at the begining. The arbitrament chosen is the strenght of the strongest. The glove should have been picked up in the spirit with which it was hurled at the foot of the pillars of the Union. The traitors, be they many or few, should have been told hat it should be a trial between the strength of the govern-ment, and those who would overthrow it. Had this been done at once promptly, and done all the time, instead of waiting breath and mainliness in unavailing schemes to be tray a principle, the condition of the country to-day; would be far better; and the power of the disunionists in the border Slave State would be far less. The union men of both sections have frittered away time and opportunity in vain efforts at compromising where no com-promise was needed, and have left the Union in the hands of the traitors."

"Resolved, That as the American Church, composed of the large and popular denominations, most of which are slaveholding or in fellowship with slaveholders, has vast power in the for try, and in the moulding of public opinion, it follows that the "American Church is the bulwark of Slavery," and that such a slaveholding religion is not the Christian religion, or such a church the Church of Jesus Christ.

"Resolved, That we may never do evil that good may come; that it is always safe to do right and that four millions of immortal beings are of infinitely more value than the Union, the Constitution, the Government, or than even church organizations; therefore we should spare no lawful effort to secure the emane pation of the enslaved, even though to effect this all proslavery sects, unions, constitutions and gev eraments should be broken up. And in this struggle in the cause of justice and humanity our war-cry should be-God speed the charlot of Freedom and Salvation, and let all opposers get out of the way, or perish!"

New ORLEANS, February 12. - The Texas Convention adjourned on the 4th, to meet again on the 2d day of March. A committee of safety has been appointed to remain at Austin. In the meantime there is not much dispusition by the Convention or Legislature to trust Houston The Legislature is discussing financial measures and a stay law.
